

Keeping Fertility Patients Safe During COVID-19 Times

During these uncertain times, we want to reassure you that Stanford Children's Health continues to provide high-quality care to our patients and we take all possible precautions to keep you and our employees safe.

Your safety and our health workers' safety remain our top priority:

- We are exceeding the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) guidelines to keep patients, employees, and our community safe during the COVID-19 pandemic.
- We are dedicated to continuing the widespread COVID-19 testing of our workforce.
- We are screening all patients before entering the hospital (signs, symptoms, and temperature check) and conducting COVID-19 testing before procedures.
- We have implemented enhanced cleaning in addition to maintaining isolated units and specialized workflows for COVID-19 care. For example, work areas and exam rooms are thoroughly cleaned after each patient visit.
- We are conducting telehealth visits as appropriate to minimize the number of fertility patients in the clinic each day.
- We have modified workflows to limit movement in the clinic, and we are instructing patients to not enter the clinic until we are ready for their appointment.
- Masks are provided to and worn by each patient and health worker, and rigorous hand hygiene is enforced, to limit the spread of droplets.
